

VIVID WORD PAINTING OF BATTLE IN THE DARDANELLES

A. P. CORRESPONDENT SEES BOMBARDMENT OF TURKS' FORTS

Dardanelles, Thursday, March 24. (Via Constantinople and Berlin, March 24, and London, March 24.)—The French battleship, the newest, sent to the bottom, one British battleship (name unknown) is not in the hands of the enemy, and three other ships of the allies damaged to such an extent that it was found necessary to take them out of action, while on the other side the Turkish forts on the Dardanelles have not been silenced and the losses sustained by their garrisons are nominal. The details of the result of the tremendous efforts made by the allied fleet on March 18 to force the passage of the Dardanelles. The action lasted nearly seven hours during which time there was a terrific cannonade from the ships of the allies and the Turkish forts. The fire from the warship at times was exceedingly severe while the Turkish gunners maintained their precision wonderfully, even when they were literally buried in the earth and debris which the exploding shells from the warships threw broadcast over their positions. Bombardment Terrific and Wonderfully Spectacular. The allies put in an appearance at about half past eleven in the morning, throwing their first shells in the town of Chanak. The Turkish vessels at this hour numbered four French and five British battleships. A little later five other British warships entered the bay and the bombardment rapidly became truly terrific and wonderfully spectacular. The correspondent of the Associated Press had taken shelter in Fort Chimenli, but he was driven out by shells to a position on a hill outside the town. But even this hill already was burning in two places as a result of exploding shells. In the beginning the range of the British and French gunners was excellent. The correspondent saw a shell land fair on a corner of the Fort Kale Sultani tower and tear out a large hole in the masonry. This roused out a party of newspaper correspondents who were just about to leave cover. Shells Explode Within 100 Yards of Correspondent. While traversing Chanak, Knolless several houses were knocked to pieces by exploding shells. The trip to the town was accelerated by the well directed shots. While the correspondents were on the wall several large shells exploded a hundred yards away and splinters from them filled the air. This attention from the British gunners was due to the fact that the party of correspondents was moving along in the center of a body of soldiers. The fire from the warships soon (Continued On Page Six.)

London, March 24.—A force of allied troops was landed on the peninsula of Gallipoli yesterday from transports in the Gulf of Saros, according to a dispatch from Athens to the Daily Express. RESUME BOMBARDMENT AGAINST FORTIFICATIONS

Paris, March 24.—Bombardment of the Turkish fortifications in the Dardanelles was resumed at 10 o'clock yesterday morning by an allied fleet, according to an Athens dispatch to the Havas Agency. The warships were accompanied into the straits by a number of mine sweepers. The Gallipoli peninsula is the eastern or European side of the Dardanelles. At its head it is not more than three or four miles wide. If this neck of land were effectively held by the allied Turkish communication with the strong positions on the peninsula would be impossible.

UNIVERSITY OF W. VIRGINIA BROKE; BANK GOES TO RESCUE

Morgantown, W. Va., March 24.—Local banks today went to the rescue of the faculty of West Virginia University here and paid their salaries with the understanding that the payroll would be taken care of monthly in similar manner until the state is able to discharge its obligations. AMENDED BILL RIPS STATE CIVIL SERVICE

Columbus, March 24.—Most examinations conducted by the state and municipal civil service commissions under the present law would be nullified by the civil service bill as amended by the house civil service committee today and ready to be reported to the house hearing the names of Senator Moore and Representative Barnes. The amendment makes the bill virtually the original Barnes bill. Employees holding positions under non-competitive examinations could continue to hold as provisional appointees, but their positions would be filled eventually from lists of those who take new competitive examinations. As amended the bill also would make state and municipal civil service commissions of three members. Public employees who have held positions for seven years would be exempted from taking new examinations. All of these and employees of state universities and colleges would be exempted from civil service regulations. Civil Service Commissioner C. H. Bryson has declared enactment of the measure will mean a waste of $300,000 spent for conducting examinations under the present law.

CLAIM CUT IN SALARY WILL NOT BE LEGAL

Columbus, March 24.—Officials whose salaries were cut by the Howard bill which has passed both houses and been signed by Governor Willis, today contended it is nullified if Attorney General Turner's opinion concerning emergency laws is upheld by the supreme court. They pointed out the bill was passed in the senate with an emergency clause, but that the house refused to make it an emergency. The attorney general's opinion holds such action automatically kills the bill, they declare.

STORY BOOK INDIAN TALES MADE REAL BY BRIG. GENERAL SCOTT

Thompsons, Utah, March 24.—Seated at the head of the table, Brig. General Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff of the United States army, at the little hotel at Thompsons, served four double and apparently happy Indians at dinner last night. The Indians, who had been pursued by a posse headed by United States Marshal Nebeker for two weeks, surrendered to General Scott near Bluff last week. The Indians were Old Polk, chief of one of the divisions of the renegade Pintos; Two-Ne-Gat, son of Old Polk, who is charged with murdering Old Posey, chief of the other division of renegades, and a son of Posey. All of the Indians referred to General Scott in their Pinto language as their Good White Father and the general insisted that the Indians were not prisoners, but "just his boys." The Indians showed keen delight when the general insisted that he and the Indians be given a separate table away from the "white folks."

Not a handclasp, not a handshake, these Indians, but the fact of genuine regard for General Scott is such that it would probably take a posse larger than that which United States Marshal Nebeker brought to Bluff to drive them from him. After they had eaten, the Indians were supplied with cigarettes by General Scott and then permitted to wander about with perfect freedom. The general's only concern was that the Indians might be run over by a train. They had never seen a railway train before, and can hardly resist the temptation to get close to the cars. The Indians had their first automobile ride coming from Bluff yesterday and they are looking forward to the Indians being given a separate table away from the "white folks."

The girl later died.

Was lookin' over my package o' congressional seeds today and there ain't a blamed thing in 'em whole bunch that I'd plant if I had a garden as big as Clay township. There's carrots, parsnips and rutabaggers in that bunch—think of it—a lot of carrot, parsnip and rutabaggers seed sent to a Billy Goat with a request to plant 'em. I'll go back to tin cans first. Here's the weather:

Baby Runs Nail Through Roof Of Mouth; Is Saved By A Secret Charm, Say Relatives

That her little 18-months-old baby daughter Pearl was saved from bleeding to death Tuesday evening is attributed by Mrs. Walter Jackson, of No. 210 Scioto street to a secret charm possessed by Aunt Jane Evans, aged 78 years, of the same address.

The baby, who has just been learning to walk, was toddling around the room when she picked up an 8 penny nail and placed it in her mouth. Suddenly she stumbled and fell, driving the nail clear through the roof of the mouth deep into the nose. The young mother was attracted by the child's scream and succeeded in extracting the nail but was unable to stop the flow of blood which was fairly rushing from the nostrils. It was then she thought of the charm Mrs. Evans claimed had never failed her. The aged woman folded her hands, muttered a few words and instantly as if by a miracle the blood stopped. The father, who is employed on the ferryboat Bonne, summoned Dr. Carl Brannin, who found the child out of danger but very weak from loss of blood.

A Times man found Aunt Jane Evans at the Sexton home on Jefferson street Wednesday afternoon and questioned her about her charm and cures. The aged woman at first declined to talk but finally declared she had possessed the charm for a half century. She said her late husband, William S. Evans fifty years ago was riding his saddle horse near Mt. Sterling, Ky., when the animal became shy. A fine looking man also mounted encountered him on the highway and nothing the misery of his horse, dismounted and walked about the suffering horse several times, whispering something as he did so and in a few minutes the horse took on new life.

A few days later Mrs. Evans received an unsigned note containing the magic words which she says comprise the charm. She said by its power she is able to draw fire, head barns and stop the flow of blood.

A young man brought one of our "Ideal Pocket Saving Banks" with his three days' savings of quarters, dimes, nickels and pennies to the office. We opened it and he had almost $1.00 which he deposited on his savings book.
He said, "It is a good thing. I could not have the bank. I would have spent the money. But now I have it saved. It is a good thing for him. It will be good for you. You can start today by leaving a bank with us and taking the bank with you. When you return the bank to be opened and your savings are credited on a pass book, we return the bank to you.

"Port of Missing Men"

At Lyric Tonight

Arnold Daly, one of the most eminent dramatic actors on the American stage, universally famed as an exponent of the "intellectual" drama, is presented for the first time before the motion picture public in "The Port of Missing Men," that popular story of foreign intrigue and romantic adventure by the famous novelist, Meredith Nicholson. Arnold Daly's subtle delineation of character and his delicate artistry idealize his efforts in the leading role of this stirring romance. "Those who remember his polished and precise portrayal of Napoleon in George Bernard Shaw's "Man of Destiny" will quickly recognize his special fitness for the part of John Armitage, who is the hero of "The Port of Missing Men," and who leaves his foreign birthplace, becomes imbued with the spirit of American democracy, and outwits the spies of his fatherland's enemies, does great service for the Empire, and yet remains loyal to his adopted country America, also showing himself

Unskilled adept at the art of love-making.

"The Port of Missing Men" abounds with intense dramatic action: the story grips from beginning to end. It is conceded one of the real triumphs of the Famous Players company, who have made many wonderful pictures. The first evening show will start at 6:30, then at 8, and 9:30. The admission will be 10 cents.

Columbia

Tonight and Tomorrow

Two corking good pictures are on the program at the Columbia this evening. The first is a two-reel special Lubin picture entitled "The Woman Went Forth," a most beautiful and interesting subject featuring Miss Ethel Clayton and a strong supporting company including many children.

The second picture, "When Samuel Skidded" is one of those really good comedies by the Vitaphone company, made with the express purpose of giving you a good hearty laugh. A man to please his wife pretends he is crippled and sues a railroad. He meets a young lady, forgets his lameness and his case is thrown out of the courts.

Tomorrow, Thursday, Manager Tynes announces a return engagement of George Kline's great masterpiece "The Last Days of Pompeii." This is the picture that created so much talk last season when we showed it on two days to crowded houses at a 25 cents admission. Tomorrow you will have a chance to see this truly wonderful picture for 10 cents and don't fail to see it.

This is the picture that reproduces the burning of Rome. The eruption of Vesuvius; the great Roman arena with its gladiators and dens of ferocious lions and many other thrilling and appealing scenes.

At Arcana Theatre

Wednesday night program of the Arcana Theatre will be given a great treat. First will be a strong Western drama in two reels, entitled "Smell!" This is one of those Western pictures for which the Arcana has become deservedly popular. A fine comedy entitled, "When Eddie Took a Bath." This is a good preview for Eddie, Don't miss it. On Thursday evening Manager Potts will produce his headliner, the fifth episode of "The Master Key," a world famous feature that is taking all the cities by storm and one that is far in the lead of features in the movie world. This production is really a twenty-cent show, but Manager Potts will keep the price at 10 cents, for he wants to give his patrons the best for the smallest money. Come and see "The Master Key" tomorrow.

At The Exhibit

"The Last Reel" is a two-reel feature that is being offered as the headliner at the Exhibit today. It is an exceptionally good picture and has the personal guarantee of Manager Law.

The picture is promoted by a good comedy entitled, "Married by Instinct." "A Miles of the Desert" is a two-reel feature offered tomorrow. It will be supported by a Keystone comedy, "Only a Farmer's Daughter." And don't forget the one picture Friday. The final installment of "The Million Dollar Mystery" will be shown then. This is the picture that all of them have been waiting for. It is the solution of the big detective story. All the programs, including a large orchestra furnishing special effects every night, is offered for 10 cents.

At The Temple Theatre

Pearl White, one of the most dazzling and victorious of movie picture actresses, plays the leading part. Never before have you had the opportunity of seeing such a remarkable picture as will be shown in this series of "The Exploits of Elaine," which abounds in those intensely dramatic situations that never fail to bring thrills whether shown in real life, on the stage or on the screen. Breathless moments follow in rapid succession, the suspense grows more marked day by day. Our second picture entitled "The Bride of Guadalupe," Domingo two reels, a romantic tale of the old California mission days by Richard V. Spencer, played by Jerome Storm, Howard Hickman, Elizabeth Ambridge, Frank Burke and Walter Edwards. Find episode of the "Million Dollar Mystery" here. Saturday night showing the winner of the $1,000,000.

MRS. BARKER TELLS OF AWFUL ORDEAL

Details of the criminal assault upon Mrs. William Barker last Sunday, heretofore not made public, were described to a Times man Wednesday afternoon by the victim herself at the sheriff's residence on Court street, where Mrs. Barker was waiting to testify before the grand jury.

Still bearing unmistakable marks of terrible abuse at the hands of her assailant, Mrs. Barker was lying on theavenport in the parlor of Sheriff Smith's residence, awaiting to be called when the reporter saw her. Her attending physician, Dr. H. P. Massie, of Haverhill, was sitting beside her. He is also a witness before the grand jury.

Check Is Still Black And Blue

Mrs. Barker's right cheek was still black and blue from the effects of the blows aimed upon her face by her assailant, while her right eye was swollen and discolored. Her upper lip was also badly swollen, and beneath it, could be seen numerous small cuts and lacerations. She also stated that her body was covered with cuts and bruises, a statement that was verified by Dr. Massie.

Mrs. Barker's statement if told to the jury as it was told to the reporter, will probably result in a charge of assault with intent to rape instead of rape against W. H. Barker, since the claims that he did not succeed in his purpose. A nurse was employed by her to protect her honor, she claims. When she realized that she was assaulted in the man's power, she said she promised him that she would accompany him to her home if he would release her from his grasp. This promise he refused to keep when they reached the railroad track again, she says. This incident probably prompted Barker to say that what he did was done with the woman's consent, a statement which the authorities have never credited.

Assault Had Revolver

Another important feature of Mrs. Barker's story which has been heretofore been disclosed is her claim that her assailant was armed with a revolver, and that he threatened to kill her if she screamed an alarm. Mrs. Barker is positive on this point, notwithstanding the fact that search has failed to reveal the gun.

In all other essential details, the story is similar to the story of the assault as printed in Monday's Times.

Mrs. Barker's story, told Wednesday afternoon is as follows: "As previously stated, I got off the N. & W. train at Haverhill, having spent the day in fronton. The man who afterwards attacked me also alighted from the same train, and started down the track ahead of me.

"When I left the station, the man was considerable distance ahead of me, but at the first crossing, some distance from the station, he stopped as if to fix his suitcase. Before he started again I was close upon him, but he was still ahead of me when I reached the crossing."

Here Dr. Massie interrupted to explain that high approaches are on each side of the crossing, shielding a person from view on either side. It was his opinion that the man intended to attempt his dastardly deed there, but was afraid to do it, because some men were working in a neighboring field.

"When we reached the next crossing, similar to the first, the man again stopped and pretended to be fixing his suitcase. I was walking on the west bound track, and he on the east bound track. I kept on going, and as I passed him, he gave a leap and grabbed me roughly by the arm. Looking down, he happened to spy my Eastern Star lodge pin, and with curses, said that he wished that the members of that lodge would get after him. He made an attempt to jerk the pin off my coat, but I prevented him from doing it.

Struck Her In The Face

"He then made an improper proposal to me, which I resented, whereupon, he struck me several times on the face, dazing me. He then dragged me down across the track into a ditch by the side of the railroad, which was partly filled with water."

Dr. Massie interrupted again to remark that the location of the ditch was completely secreted from view, and that it would have been impossible for anyone to have seen the couple down there.

"I haven't any recollection of what happened part of the time while I was in the ditch. It seemed like hours before I opened my eyes again, although they tell me I couldn't have been there over thirty minutes. When I regained consciousness, I heard a man on horseback crossing the railroad crossing. I attempted to scream, and it was then that the man placed a revolver at my throat, and said he would kill me if I made a sound."

Worked A Clever Ruse

"When I realized that I was completely in the man's power I told him that if he would let me up, I would go with him to my home. I told him that my husband was at work, and that no one would see us."

"He agreed, and we returned to the railroad track. I pointed out a house nearby which I said was my home, but which is some distance from our house. After walking a short distance, he decided to return for his suitcase, and wanted me to go back with him. I told him I was tired, and would wait for him."

"Before leaving me he again placed the gun to my head and said he would kill me if I even made an alarm. He saw me once wave to a young girl in the house which I had pointed out to him, and immediately shouted that he would shoot my hand off if I did it again."

"Feeling that he would shoot me, I walked backwards while he wasn't looking, and when I was a safe distance away, started to run with all my might, never stopping until I arrived at home, where I told my husband what occurred. The man made no attempt to shoot me or follow me, but evidently broke into a run in the opposite direction."

"The rest of the story you know from others," she concluded.

Mrs. Barker was accompanied to Portsmouth by her husband, Dr. Massie, and a Mrs. Whitman, a neighbor, all of whom are witnesses before the grand jury. They will be called before the afternoon session is over.

An affidavit was filed in Squire Byron's court Wednesday afternoon by John Zeune, deputy county sealer, against the officials of the Coshocton Milling Company, charging them with selling flour under weight to merchants in Scioto county.

Zeune claims that tests were made of their sacks at a New Boston store, and that they were under the required weight.

MILLIONAIRE POLITICIAN MYSTERIOUSLY MURDERED

St. Louis, March 24.—Richard Randolph, age 42, president of the Trenchon Laco company and the Central Merchandise company and candidate at the recent primary for congress from the Twelfth Missouri district, was assassinated mysteriously in the offices of the company here late yesterday.

His wife, Mrs. Deal Randolph, who recently was sued for divorce by her husband, was arrested tonight, but she denied any knowledge of the shooting. The police also have issued a general order for the arrest of a man named by Randolph in his petition for divorce.

Randolph was wounded by a shot fired through a plate glass skylight near the rear of the building. He died soon afterward. On the second floor of the building, near the skylight, the police found a repeating rifle of a large calibre and it is believed that Randolph's assassin used this weapon.

TAKE STEPS TO SECURE A BETTER TEMPORARY ROAD

For the purpose of looking into the temporary road just north of the city, the roads committee of the board of trade, composed of Messrs. John C. Hauer, W. B. Anderson, Albert Manning, Charles Baehler and James W. Cannon, Jr., made a trip to the road Wednesday afternoon and inspected it.

It begins where the paving of the Pike ends and all phases of it were carefully looked into by this committee. Upon their arrival back in the city Secretary Maurice Cor, of the board of trade, announced that they would hold a joint conference with the county commissioners just as soon as possible, the meeting being designed to improve the temporary road and make it as passable as possible. It is built in soft loam, it is stated, and the committee is afraid that it would be the source of many complaints, should a wet and rainy summer be experienced.

"Work on the new Chesapeake and Ohio bridge and on the construction line to Columbus will go right on without delays or interruptions," said a prominent C. & O. official Wednesday.

"There is absolutely no foundation for the report that work may be stopped at any time. In fact the construction work is to be prosecuted with renewed vigor spring. The rumor hasn't a semblance of truth attached to it."

Columbus, March 24.—If the legislature enacts the Snyder bill, which the house public health committee expected to report with recommendation for passage, every municipal hospital in Ohio will be placed under the direction of a board of three supervisors, appointed by the mayor, instead of under the safety director, as at present.

Mrs. Meta Berger, wife of former Congressman Victor L. Berger, Socialist Democrat, led the field with 17,352 votes. Out of ten nominees, five are Socialist Democrats.

Settled Now. Any doubt as to whether Attorney N. B. Gilliland would be a candidate for the Republican nomination for mayor were removed Wednesday afternoon when he started circulating printed cards among the voters, announcing his candidacy. Nate believes in the old adage "the early bird, etc."

Move Pool Room. Straker Bros. have moved their pool and billiard business from Third and Market streets to one of the rooms Sam Greenberg has been occupying. Mr. Greenberg is moving part of his stock to his new branch store on Gallia street.

Purdon said Wednesday he had no inclination or intention in that direction, adding that he has passed the time when he would have considered such. He said a number of his friends, however, have been urging him to enter the field.

Given Up Hope?

"For nearly 8 years," says Mrs. H. C. Larson, of Olathe, Iowa, "I suffered with womanly troubles. The doctor could only relieve me at times. I received a bad fall which added to my suffering. I was advised to have an operation, but could not bear to think of it. So I decided to try CARDUI. I want to say that it did wonders for me. Now I hardly know that I have been sick. I cannot say too much for CARDUI. I always recommend it, for I know it will prove a blessing to all who suffer as I did." A MAN ON THE JOB.

When Edward C. Turner was prosecuting attorney of Franklin county he demonstrated a rare devotion to duty that refused to be swayed by any outside interests or calculations and that commanded the attention and admiration of the state. Citizens had reason to expect much of him when they elevated him to the position of attorney general of the state and his recent actions have shown that their faith in him was justified. Mr. Turner has brought the same high ideals to his new office that characterized his as prosecutor and he insists that the laws of the state must be obeyed, regardless of suggestions from an expediency loving governor and a spoilsman legislature that the constitution should not stand in the way among friends. Thus when Mr. Turner found that the legislature was violating the law in the passage of alleged emergency acts designed solely to secure patronage for a horde of office seekers, he called a halt. Then there was a hurried conference of legislative leaders and no less a person than the governor of this state, from which conference an appeal was sent to Turner that he withhold his ruling and not say anything about it so that the party managers could go ahead with a division of the spoils. But Attorney General Turner was made of better stuff than that. He refused to become a passive party to a violation of the constitution of the state and his ruling went forth.

Attorney General Turner seems to be the sort of an official needed in public office. He stands forth in striking contrast to Governor Willis and his immediate advisers who were anxious, according to newspaper dispatches, to go ahead with their program regardless of the law and the constitution.

THE FIENDISH VENEZUELAN "TORTOLA"

I had been in the Venezuelan Republic for some ten years, and was well known as a peaceful foreigner, when one day I was approached by a prominent Government official and asked whether I would help the Godes (Conservatives) in their endeavor to free the country from the tyranny and corruption under which it was suffering, writes H. G. Fuller in The Wide World Magazine for April.

At once I entered into the spirit of the revolution, and volunteered my services in Caracas, the capital, as organizer and intermediary between the "heads" in Porto Rico and the "party" in the country.

Everything went well with me until, one evening, I was just returning from delivering private correspondence from "outside" to the leaders "inside," when I was suddenly accosted by three men I knew to be spies of the Government, who pushed me into a waiting automobile and hurried me off to the Batanda, the political jail. On arrival there I was stripped of my outer garments and, after being examined to see that I had nothing concealed on my person, was made to get through a sort of window about five feet from the floor and just large enough to allow a man to pass. I was then conducted by two negro orderlies to a calabozo (dungeon) with cement floor, containing a wooden shelf some four feet from the ground. This calabozo measured ten feet long by six feet wide at one end and four feet wide at the door, where a heavy canvas curtain hung.

In a few minutes I heard heavy footfalls, and was surprised to see the governor of the jail, accompanied by a negro with iron and another carrying a small stove (stove) containing burning charcoal. They then proceeded to put the irons on my ankles and rivet them on.

These irons, or grillos, weighed seventy pounds. I was told that the wooden shelf was my bed and that I was to keep silence. No blankets or pillows are allowed, and one is in one's underclothing only night and day.

After a great deal of hard work I managed to climb on to my "bed" and sit, with my back against the wall, my legs extended. Being thoroughly fatigued, I fell asleep, but was later awakened by voices outside my cell. Then a light was thrust inside and the governor, with his assistant and two black judges with drawn swords, came inside.

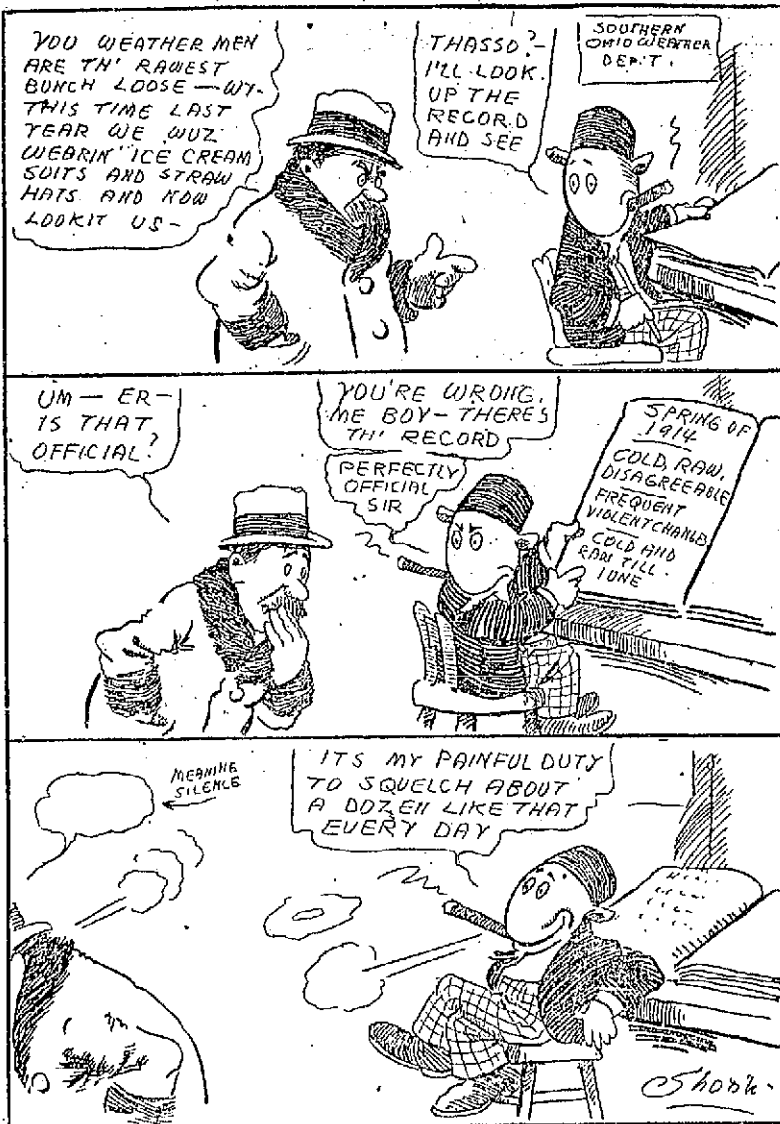

"Declare what you know," ordered the governor. I protested that I had nothing to tell him. Again he ordered me to confess all I knew; and on my repeating that I had absolutely nothing to tell him I was struck across the legs with a verga, a hard leather thong.

Seeing that I was determined to say nothing, he told me meaningfully that there were other means of extracting a confession, and left me, going into the calabozo adjoining mine, where I heard him order the prisoner there to declare what he knew.

What the man's reply was I do not know, but shortly afterwards I heard him scream out: "Oh, heavens! Don't kill me like this! Shoot me; hang me; cut my throat; but don't do this to me! I am dying!"

I afterwards found out that they had put the tortola on the man, who was a doctor and connected with the Godes. The tortola is a fiendish instrument, placed on a very sensitive part of the body and screwed up, causing excruciating pain.

It was a common occurrence at two or three o'clock in the morning to hear a man scream out with horror and pain when the tortola was being screwed up to try and make him reveal what he knew of the doings of the other political party.

WE WANT AN AFFIDAVIT.

The next Republican aspirant for mayoralty honors who drops around and whispers in our ear that he is thinking of being a candidate at the primary and would appreciate it so much if we would hint about his friends manly calling upon him to run so that the public pulse could be felt, will have to bring along an affidavit and two friends to back it up, to the effect that he will not make a general and wholesale denial in the Star the next morning. We like to be obliging and are really inclined to be very patient and forbearing, but we have been stung twice lately and enough is enough.

The original King of the Cannibal Islands lived on one of the Fiji Islands in the South Pacific. Now ninety per cent of the former cannibals are church members. A number of missionaries were served in stews before the change came, and some of the unregenerate still think longingly of missionary hash.—Gallipolis Tribune.

"See that group of men over there," remarked the man who stands on the First National Bank corner every day in the year, holidays included. "Well they are the unemployed Republican politicians who expected to land soft jobs up at Columbus and who are now putting in their time trying to figure how it is that such non-combatants as Art Devoes can command while they are left to eat snow balls. 'Tis a sad and cruel world."

Senator Traumper seems to use a rabbit's foot on his fellow members of the upper house of the Ohio legislature for whenever he has a bill out for passage it gets about all the votes there are. Even the Democrats join in helping the gentleman from Scioto.

At that we hope that Young Doc Sellards will not allow his budding ambition to be mayor to be blighted by the chilling frost of a Star that has other fish to fry.

Taking the Dardanelles has not proven such a holiday sport as the Britishers and the French anticipated.

The Columbus Journal which has Billy Sundayphobia to an alarming degree maliciously remarks that Billy is paying no attention to the hammering he is getting from Eastern newspapers, but goes serenely on his way. Sure. Why should Billy worry? Or why should anybody else worry if they pulled down a trifle of $52.176 for nine weeks singing of slant?

Want City Water

Alan Jordan conferred with William Gorgens, director of public service, early Wednesday morning, relative to making preliminary arrangements for city water supply service in the new fallow addition east of New Boston. The city engineer will be asked to prepare plans and estimates and the matter will then be taken up with city council. The owners of the new addition are also considering plans for constructing combination storm and sanitary sewers.

P. O. E. This boat is one of the finest of the Ohio river.

Sometimes as we contemplate the self-satisfied great men about us we are reminded of what Saint Beuve said of Philip Stanhope, son of the famous Lord Chesterfield, viz: "He was one of those ordinary men of the world, of whom it suffices to be said, there is nothing to be said."

Really we think the most considerate thing that ever happened was for Chillicoth and Fronton to come into the Ohio State League again just to give Portsmouth the pleasure of beating them. Such politeness is overpowering.

Animal Jingles

MOTHER McGREW AND HER FAMILY

Said Mother McGrew one nice morning in May;
"I hear there's a Sunday school picnic today;
We'll go if you promise to be very good."
And of course all the animals promised they would.

Said Mother McGrew, "Now what shall we take?"
The Rabbit said "pie" and the Ostrich said "cake."
But the Pig said, "Oh, mercy! take all sorts of stuff;
'Twould be a sad thing if we hadn't enough."

She started to work and soon Mother McGrew
Had cooked enough food for a family or two;
And then they set off as fast as they could
For the Sunday school picnic in Robinson's wood.

And almost at once the Pig said, "Let's eat quick,
For that is the best thing about a picnic."
But Mother McGrew said severely, "That's rude;
You must not be all the time thinking of food."

"Run off now and play and at quarter past two We'll have a nice dinner," said Mother McGrew.
So off they all scampered, both little and big,
The only one who didn't go was the Pig.

At a quarter past two they came back out of breath,
And said, "Now let's eat, we are most starved to death."
But though they went looking and searching around,
Not a trace of their bountiful lunch could be found.

No one would have blamed Mr. Pig, I suppose,
But Mother McGrew saw some pins on his nose.
Said she, "Now, young man, you go home double-quick,
And you never again can attend a picnic."

And so he went home just as quick as he could
From the Sunday school picnic in Robinson's wood,
And since then at picnics I don't think you'll find
A Pig, or at least not the four-footed kind.

THE ADVENTURES OF ETHEL ELEPHANT

(By Evelyn Campbell and Mil-

Once there was a little girl named
Ethel Elephants,
She was a very sweet child, we
will agree;

She lived in a jungle with mother
and aunt,
And was happy, contented, and
free.

One day Ethel grew very discouraged,
And what on earth do you think
she did say,

"I've got a very splendid little
plan,
I think that I will run away."

She went upstairs and filled her
trunk,
And through the air her hat she
hurled,

She was thinking quietly to herself,
Of her adventures in the world.

She hopped and skipped and had
a good time,
But she walked a very long way,
Till she came to a distant jungle,
And there she thought she would

HUNTINGTON
EXPANDING

Another notable step in the growth and progress of the Anderson-Newcomb Company, whose department store on Third avenue has
for many years been one of the leading institutions of Huntington,
was announced yesterday, when it was known that the room in the rear of the building occupied by the Smith Store had been taken over by the owners of the big department with a view to the extension of the annex leading to the east
from the rear of the present first floor. The building was purchased outright and the ground level and the Anderson-Newcomb Company thus secured 30,000 feet of additional floor space.

W. H. Newcomb, Jr., one of the officers of the company, stated yesterday that the new room would be entered by an archway from the present extension, which is in the rear of the Smith store and that the new department would be transferred to the space thus made available to relieve the congestion in the basement.—Huntington Herald-

The Markets

NEW YORK STOCK

New York, March 23.—Stocks while steady rose to their best average prices since last December, on a continuance of active and broad operations.

The upward swing of the stock market was resumed at the beginning of today's business, many leading issues and a number of less prominent ones making new high prices for the current movement. Among these were United States Steel, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, American Smelting, Baltimore and Ohio, American Can and some of the equipment group, notably American Locomotive and American Car and Foundry, in which the rise extended between 1 and 2 points.

Bethlehem Steel added another point to yesterday's decline. Trading was again very active with further short coverings.

Speculation broadened to a marked degree during the balance of the morning session, trading in the first hour aggregating about 200,000 shares, with some diminution of activity toward midday.

Prices continued to rise, however, the feature being Union Pacific, which was the most prominent stock at an advance of 2 1/2 points. Taking the morning's best prices as a basis, the level of quoted values was highest of any time since the exchange resumed operations.

The fact that dealings centered about the seasoned issues instead of the specialties was accepted as an indication of the market's inherent soundness. Bonds were active and firm.

Profit taking and renewal of short selling caused some substantial recessions in the late trading. The closing was strong.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, March 24.—Wheat prices underwent a setback today owing largely to the fact that the Liverpool market failed to respond to yesterday's strength in America. There was also a good deal of selling here on the theory that the bulge yesterday had in the main eliminated the short interest. Some attention too was given reports that the British government had seized all wheat in India and would endeavor to prevent all inflated profits. After opening 1 1/2 down the market rallied somewhat, but then sagged lower than before.

Corn went down grade with wheat. Selling pressure, however, was light, the opening, which varied from 1 1/2 to 1 1/4 off, was followed by a moderate further decline.

Oats turned easy with other grain but the downward tendency was less pronounced than in wheat and corn. The bears were cautious as a result of continued reports of delayed shipping.

Large receipts of hogs throughout the west acted as a weight on provisions. Selling, though, was not of unusual volume.

Signs that large cash wheat sales had been made at the sub-board led afterward to a quick upturn in that commodity which was given further impetus by Kansas reports of damage from Hessian fly. The close was nevertheless weak at 5 1/2 to 1 1/2 under last night.

Later the corn market hardened a little in consequence of the advance in wheat. The close was weak, however, at 3/8 to 1/2 net decline.

MANGLED BODY FOUND NEAR N. & W. TRACKS

The mangled body of a man, supposed to be Richard Lumpkins, found on him gave a clue to his name. He has a wife living at one mile west of Chatterbox, W. Va., early Wednesday morning. He is supposed to have been struck by an eastbound train. Twenty-one pints and a half pint.

SOLD BY TIMES AD

Theodore Pierson, local agent for the Moerlein Brewing company, is willing to attest to the fact that as a silent salesman, a Times want ad has no equal. He advertised a buggy and phaeton for sale Tuesday evening, and had inquiries from the time the paper appeared on the street, anxious buyers calling him out of bed, early Wednesday morning. He disposed of both vehicles to Bernard Sommer of the Central Hardware company.

THIRD SPECIAL SERMON

The third sermon of the Lenten services at the First Presbyterian church will be preached tonight (Wednesday) at the First Presbyterian Bible school room by Rev. Edwin M. Townsend of the First Presbyterian church of Ironton. The services begin at 7 o'clock and everybody is invited. Song service will precede the preaching service.

Runaway

A team of horses belonging to John Reiser of Turkey Creek were frightened at noon Wednesday while standing at the N. & W. freight depot on Gallia street. The team ran down Gallia street and in front of Freund's drug store collided with a team driven by Edward Moore of Rockport, Adams county. Reiser's wagon was badly damaged, but the men and horses escaped injury. John Reiser is a brother of Albert Reiser of this city.

Accept Bond.

Manchester, March 21—Marshal James Bradford appeared before council last night for the third time and presented a bond for $5,000, signed by ten citizens, two of whom filed affidavits stating that they were each worth more than $5,000 above all indebtedness. The council promptly accepted the bond and the friction between officials seems to be at an end.

Widow Appointed.

Myrtle Swank, widow of Charles C. Swank, who was killed near McDermott on January 15th last by a falling derrick, was appointed by Probate Judge Wednesday as administrator of her husband's estate. The appointment was made in order that she could receive a cash settlement which the McArthur Stone Company has agreed to pay her, her husband having been in its employ.

May Furnish Ties.

John Dewey, prominent merchant and the dealer of Jasper, Pike county, was a business visitor in Portsmouth Wednesday. Mr. Dewey and his associates in the business expect to furnish the ties to be used in the construction of the Ohio Valley Traction Company's extension from Sciotoville to Ironton.

Called To Ironton.

Dr. Joseph Lake was called to Ironton Wednesday on professional business, returning Wednesday afternoon.

Non-Support Charged.

Upon the order of Judge Denton, Officer Allen arrested William Spaulding, a North End negro, Wednesday morning, on a charge of non-support, preferred by his wife. Spaulding was later released by the court upon his promise to provide for his wife and minor children.

Leroy Compton, of the Fox Camera shop, is laid up at his home on Kendall avenue, suffering with trouble some pet boils.

CATARH LEADS

TO CONSUMPTION

Catarh is as much a blood disease as scurvy or rheumatism. It may be relieved, but cannot be removed by simply local treatment. It breaks down the general health, weakens the lung tissues, and leads to consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla is so successful in the treatment of catarh that it is known as the best remedy for this disease. It purifies the blood. Ask your druggist for it.

INDIAN TALES

With eagerness to their first train ride, which begins when they start for Salt Lake City today.

General Scott's story of the pacification of the Indians, told last night follows:

Attended On Mission By Orderly And Aide

"We left Washington to come out here to attempt to settle this little misunderstanding on March 2. With me were Lieut. Colonel Robert E. L. Michie, my aide de camp, and Trooper P. R. Randolph of the Fifth cavalry, my orderly. We reached Thompsons on March 8, and went to Bluff, going by automobile, wagon, sleigh, horseback and on foot. At Bluff we learned that Poll and Posey and their Indians had gone to the Navajo mountains, some 125 miles west of Bluff. We stayed a day in Bluff and went to Mexican Hat, on the San Juan river, twenty-eight miles west of Bluff.

"We sent a friendly Piale, called Jim's Boy, out to tell the Piales that I wanted to see them. Some of them came in near where we were camped but it was not until the third day that any dared to come to the camp.

"Posey and four other Indians then came into camp. We talked a little through a Navajo interpreter. It was in the evening and I just asked them how they were. I told them I did not feel very well and did not want to talk to them until the next day. They helped us kill a beef, and we gave them a good meal, the first they had had for weeks. They were poorly clad and we gave them some blankets. Posey and his men did not have any weapons, but I have reason to suspect that they had hidden them in the rocks nearby.

"Says Cowboys Killed Children and Wounded Squaw

"The next day Poll and Hatch and about 25 others came in to see me. I asked them to tell me their troubles. They said the cowboys had come in the day before on horseback and surrounded them, shot their children and wounded a squaw. They said they didn't like the cowboys. It seemed they had previously had trouble with the cowboys.

"Then I told them some of my troubles. I told them I didn't think they would like to have their children chased by soldiers and cowboys all over the mountains and killed. I told them that I wouldn't like to have my children treated that way and that I would be glad to do anything I could to stop it. I didn't try to push matters with them. I told the agents to see that they had provisions and blankets for the rest of their people and for their squaws and children. I told them that after they had thought matters over I wanted them to tell me what they wanted to do about it. They talked together and then said they wanted to do just what I wanted them to do.

Expressed Willingness To Accompany Marshal

"Then we sat down in a circle and I said: 'The marshal wants you, and you and you,' indicating Posey, Poll, Hatch and Posey's boy, 'to go with him to Salt Lake. The rest of you can go back to your people and go to the reservation with the agents. Is that all right?' They said it was, and further they said that if I said so they would all come to Salt Lake.

"Then we broke camp and all rode ponies back into Bluff. We rode ahead and let the Indians follow us. They have never been ironed or shackled, never even had to believe they are prisoners. They never tried to get away. Why, I don't believe we could get rid of them if we tried. At night they have slept together and nobody has stood guard over them.

Would Have Cost U. S. $25,000 To Fight Them

"They are perfectly harmless now. All the Indians are satisfied. The whites are over their fears and there will be no more trouble from this band of Indians. The Indians are just children, easy to alarm and sometimes, hard to appease. They had worked themselves up to a pitch where they were getting very dangerous. They were attempting to get a large band of Navajos to join them in an outbreak. Where they were camped in the wild broken country near the Grand Canyon, they would have been mighty hard to dislodge. It would have taken a large force of cavalry, two regiments probably, to subdue them, and it would have cost the government $25,000 just to get the soldiers in here."

"None of the four Indians talks English. Through an interpreter Tse-No-Gat, or Hatch, said he was not guilty of any crime. When asked about the Mexican he is accused of killing, he said: 'The Mexican was my friend. We camped together. I did not kill him. Why should I kill my friend?'

L. W. Ehlendt, agent of the Prudential Insurance Co., who has been confined to his bed for four weeks with rheumatism following a portion of each day.

Mrs. A. Z. Blair continues to recover from a recent operation she submitted to for appendicitis.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to bring about a more healthful condition of the liver led him to the great discovery that calomel does but have no bad after-effects. They do not injure the teeth, the stomach or the bowels. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. They cure the liver at the expense of the liver's calomel sometimes plays havoc with the stomach, so do strong cathartics.

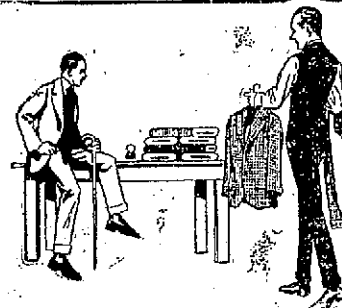

It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place. Most headaches, indigestion and that very feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "stuffy" and "heavy." Note how they "cleanse" your bowels and how they "pick up" your spirits. At 25¢ a box, per box. All druggists.

became general. One shell buried itself in the ground close to the observers; fortunately in exploding it did no damage.

The hill side toward which the correspondents were making their way finally was reached at about half past twelve. It was then seen that the British had concentrated their fire upon the forts. The noise of the explosions and the replies of the Turkish batteries were deafening.

Correspondents Unable To Find Cover Anywhere

The area of fire was so extended that at certain times the correspondents were unable to find cover anywhere. A certain vantage point, however, was finally decided upon and from this position the observers looked upon a wonderful assault: the concentrated attack of a large group of modern battleships against well built and well defended land fortifications.

The British ships were firing heavily and continually. At times the smoke was so thick that it completely blotted the horizon and totally enveloped the particular Turkish fort under fire. One would get glimpses of the fortifications lifting their higher points out of clouds of gray smoke. The severity of the fire led one to think the fort had been blown away, but time and again the smoke cleared and showed the Turkish position virtually undamaged.

Fire of Turks Is Rapid And Accurate

The fire of the Turks was rapid and accurate, so much so that the fire from the allied warships became erratic. Many shots flew high while others fell short. One result of this was that the tower of Chanak Kalesi behind forts Hamidieh and Chenevich had wide avenues cut through it. Fire broke out in the Greek quarter and destroyed a considerable number of houses. In the meantime Turkish soldiers were formed into fire brigades and were successful in keeping the flames down.

Waves Close Over The French Warship Bouvet

The bombardment reached its greatest intensity at 3:15 in the afternoon when all of a sudden the French battleship Bouvet was observed to be riding low by the stern. The next minute she swung a little to port. At the same time her after deck disappeared under water. For about two minutes she held in this position, the water near her coming tower. Then she settled completely by the stern her bows clear of the water and pointing toward the sky. The next instant the waves closed over the ill-fated vessel. It was believed she had struck a mine. Boats rushed to the rescue but only a few men were saved.

A few minutes later a large Turkish shell was seen to strike the deck of a British vessel. When the smoke of the explosion had cleared away, it was seen that the vessel's fore mast had been cut off near the crow's nest and bent to one side. Her rigging was hanging down in a tangled mass. This same shot apparently also damaged the machinery, for it could be seen that the vessel was experiencing difficulty in gaining the open sea.

This was hardly over when another vessel was struck heavily on the deck. She also was obliged to retire under a gallant Turkish fire.

British Warship Left Stranded Under Fire

But the greatest tragedy came at about a quarter before five in the afternoon when a British warship was so badly damaged that she was obliged to run ashore within range of the Turkish guns. For one hour until a quarter before six warships of the allies stood by and protected their stranded companion with a heavy fire from the Turkish forts but the coming of night obliged them to withdraw leaving behind them the ill-fated vessel. The Turkish gunners directed an accurate fire against her and she was still holding out at the time this dispatch was written.

Eight shots were seen strike the vessel's deck full and square within 10 minutes. Nevertheless, she continued to return this terrible fire. Her shots had no apparent effect upon the fort.

Turkish Losses Have Been Exceedingly Light

So far as has been ascertained to the present time, the Turkish losses today have been one gun jammed by debris, two men killed and 15 slightly wounded. Other reports on damages have not yet come in but it is understood that they were very slight.

The fire from all the vessels of the allied fleet came to an end at sundown. Not one gun in a Turkish fort was silenced, in spite of the fact that something between 1200 and 2000 shells were fired at the shore positions. Tonight Chanak Kalesi is still burning in two places and there is maintained a fire on the other side of the water in Kilit Bahri. On shore it is felt that the work of today has resulted in a victory for the Turks. The British and French vessels today ventured close enough to come within range of Turkish guns which up to the present time, had not been fired.

The official account of the operations of the allied fleet against the Dardanelles forts on March 18, as given out by the British admiralty, said that the British battleships Irresistible and Ocean and the French battleship Bouvet were sunk by drifting mines. It was added that the French battleship Gaulois was damaged by gun fire and that the British battle cruiser Inflexible had been hit by a heavy shell on her forward control position and required repairs.

New Rules For Teachers' Exams

County Superintendent McCowan is mailing out to the school teachers of Seacoast county the rules prescribed by the state department of public instruction regarding teachers' examinations. For the benefit of those who are not teaching at present but who plan to teach next year, The Times publishes below a copy of the notice:

Five hours of extension work is equivalent to six weeks' credit of professional training. The first half of the examination may be taken before the applicant has secured the six weeks' training, but the second half can not be taken until after the six weeks' professional training period has been secured. Certificates of training on forms prescribed by the state department must be filed with the county superintendent, who is the clerk of the board of examiners, on day of examination.

One year of high school training or its equivalent, is required of all applicants for elementary certificates. Three years of successful teaching and one year of certified reading circle work, or two years of teaching, and two years of reading circle work will be accepted as the equivalent of the one year high school training required. This must be certified to the clerk of the board of examiners before taking the examination.

The practical teaching test must be satisfactorily completed before the applicant will be granted a certificate. The test must be given within 30 days after the last half of the examination.

The board of examiners will always arrange for the test. If they can do so, but they will not be responsible if one can not be arranged for if notice is not given to the county superintendent by April 15th, by all who expect to take an examination by Sept. 1st.

Renewals will be made when a grade of 90 is made on theory and practice and on the teaching test.

The examinations this summer will be held the first Saturday in April and May and the last Friday in June and August.

Renewals after May 1st will be dated Sept. 1st, 1915.

All prospective applicants who have never taught will also have to take a teaching test. The above rules apply to them.

A county normal school for the training of teachers will be held at Wheelersburg this summer. It will be a six weeks' session, the time to be announced later. This is in reality a state normal, for the state will pay the teacher of professional subjects. The district superintendents will teach in this school as may be required by the county superintendent. The county superintendent will supervise the school and may possibly teach some in it if he can find the time to do so. This will give all an opportunity to get the required training at home. Work other than professional subjects will be given. Announcements of the same will appear in the county papers later.

The "Goose Girl" A Great Feature

The Columbia Theater came within a few persons of establishing an attendance record Tuesday, the popular playhouse being packed at all performances of the "Goose Girl," in which that bewitching little woman, Marguerite Clark, played the leading role most successfully. In fact this pretty little woman has firmly entrenched herself in the hearts of Portsmouth playgoers. Her acting is so natural and unaffected that it is no wonder she is regarded as one of the greatest stars in the motion picture firmament. She was excellently supported and the play gave extreme gratification. It was one of the best productions ever shown at the Columbia and for the benefit of those patrons who are observing Lent and did not see the play, Manager Tynes has arranged for "The Goose Girl" to play a return engagement in the very near future.

Manager Tynes must certainly hit upon a very novel scheme in advertising the play. He secured four large geese and placed them in a wire cage in front of the Columbia. The geese made some noise too, and in the language of the society reporter, "were the cynosure of all eyes."

FINE LECTURE IS GIVEN BY MRS. DORA BACHMAN

Says Parents Are Responsible For Providing Wholesome Recreation

Discussion of conditions in present day public educational institutions featured the address of Mrs. Dora Sandoe Bachman, of Columbus, at the High School Auditorium Tuesday evening. She delivered an entertaining and profitable lecture on the subject, "Modern Conditions in Public Education."

She also went on record in opposition to the two sessions a day plan for a high school, claiming that it was her experience as a member of the Columbus board of education that the plan worked a hardship on young men and young women who are helping to make their way through school. She admitted that the one session plan left more time at the disposal of the students, but she contended that upon the parents fell the burden of providing wholesome recreation for their children. It was only in the instances where the parents failed in their duty that the schools should step in.

Mrs. Bachman also stated that in Columbus they were considering seriously the return to the two sessions a day plan, but that it was due to the congested conditions of the high schools, which she claimed, were overcrowded. So far as the pupils were concerned, they still would have the one day sessions, as the same pupils would not attend both sessions.

In reply to the inquiry as to whether or not she favored the reading of the Bible in the public schools, Mrs. Bachman made the following statement:

"We ought not want to have the Bible read to children of other faiths any more than we would want the Koran read to our children if we happened to be located in a foreign country. Some one has suggested that these children could leave the room while the Bible is being read, but I submit to you if there is a child who would want to hear the humiliation of leaving the room while the Bible is being read."

"The place to educate our children along religious lines is at the Sunday school, through the religious organizations, and at the home. Religious training in the schools approaches too closely the union of the church and the state. Comments on the Bible reading by the teachers would open the way for all sorts of unpleasant conditions in the schools."

The responsibility of the parents in teaching the child self-control was emphasized by Mrs. Bachman, who urged all parents present to assist the teachers of the schools by enforcing discipline at home.

"If you parents at home allow your children to have everything they want because they want it, how do you expect a teacher to have any control over them?"

Study at school and study at home both had their advantages, and Mrs. Bachman recommended both for the pupils. The study at school was favored because it breaks the recreation periods, which are tiring upon the child if they continue uninterrupted throughout the school day. The argument in favor of study was that it permitted the child to concentrate its mind on its work, a difficult task at school where there is so much to distract the pupil's mind.

Use of the school buildings as community centers was also favored by Mrs. Bachman, but to insure a success of the project, the demand must come from the parents and the homes, she thought. "You teachers can't organize the community center plan and force the parents and children to take an interest in it. The demand must come from the homes of your school children, and then you can give it every encouragement within your power."

The above important questions were brought out after Mrs. Bachman's address, in response to queries which she invited at the close of her lecture. The promptness and thoroughness with which she answered each question demonstrated that she has been accustomed to deal with such questions as a member of the board of education of Columbus.

Mrs. Bachman did not favor a big upheaval in educational affairs, but she did counsel changes that were in keeping with modern conditions and the growth of the country. She also urged her hearers to get solidly behind any movement that meant the advancement of the school system.

When some one advocates a change that will mean an improvement, don't stand around and oppose it, and say you didn't have that when you were children, and that you got along all right without it. Remember the world that we are educating our children for is a vast different world than the one into which we stepped from the school rooms.

"And don't neglect the school affairs of your city by taking no part in them, and then criticize the school board and the school officials for not doing what you think they ought to do. The schools of any city will be governed the way the people want them to be managed, and it is only when every one takes the proper interest in the schools that a desirable condition is attained."

"Among the things that will command more thought and attention from the school authorities in the near future are vocational training, and recreation periods. It is going to be imperative that those things be included in the school curriculum, in Mrs. Bachman's opinion. This may have a tendency to lengthen the school day, but it will not be a day of continuous study and mental concentration.

Industrial training was not held out, however, as a panacea for all of the ills that affect the educational system. The prime purpose of education, she added, was to train the mind. "A well-trained mind will direct the hand when the time comes that direction is necessary," she said.

She called attention to the lack of funds for public education that every city and town in Ohio was experiencing, and again enlisted the aid of her auditors to get behind a movement that would compel the state legislature to provide more money for school funds.

The value of providing lunch of some kind during the morning hours has been demonstrated in Columbus, said Mrs. Bachman. This applied to the wealthier children as to the poorer classes, and was favored for every locality.

In the early part of her address she emphasized the part which education plays in the development and growth of the nation, and in the eradication of poverty, filth and crime. Her views along those lines were similar to those expressed by educational leaders for years past, and provided a pleasing preface for her more modern ideas.

She also spoke of the prominent part which women have played in educational matters in this country for the past few years, and weighed in with a strong boost for the movement to elect a woman as a member of the board of education of Portsmouth.

Mrs. Bachman was introduced by Superintendent Frank Appel, who also complimented the women for the part they were taking in educational affairs locally, particularly the Mothers' and Teachers' Club of the Lower Fourth street school building, under whose auspices the lecture was given.

Mrs. Bachman was entertained royally during her stay in this city, being the guest of honor at a tea and reception given Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Alan N. Jordan, which was attended by over one hundred women, all of whom met the distinguished visitor. Mrs. Bachman left for home early Wednesday morning, well pleased with her local visit.

Remarkable Remedy That Works All Through Your Body.

When you push a teaspoonful of S. S. S. into your stomach it gets straight into your blood. It less than five minutes it has begun a wave of restoration, cleansing wherever the blood has circulated. Does this read like magic? But it is absolutely true. Those powerful digestive juices of the stomach can not change the medicinal effect of S. S. S. The liver can not burn it. The lungs, skin and kidneys excrete it only after S. S. S. has set in motion millions of cells and nerves to throw off the countless germs that have infested every part of the body. And as S. S. S. continues to battle these trouble-makers, justly that gather in the form of pimples, boils, eruptions, acne, catarrhs, rheumatism and other so-called blood disorders, it forces into action a myriad of strange but wonderful organs called "kidneys" that actually absorb or change or convert disease germs so they are finally and quickly cast out of the body. It is probably the best secret remedy blood medicine known. You will find S. S. S. on sale in nearly every drug store in the U. S. Get a bottle today. And let your doctor know. Write to the Medical Department, The S. S. S. Co., 105 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. It is conducted by a noted physician.

Roof Was On Fire

Wood burning in an open grate at the residence of John Nuxley, at 1018 Eighth street Tuesday evening, caused sparks to pour out of the chimney, some of which alighted on the roof, igniting it. Mrs. Lucy Vogel, a neighbor, happened to be passing at the time and notified the family. Her son, Harry, turned in the alarm at 7:15 o'clock, and the fire department was on the scene promptly, putting out the blaze before any serious damage was done. The property is owned by Miss Alice Doherty, and the damage was limited to a few shingles.

Amicab'e Arrangement

Members of the Retail Clerks' Union, at their meeting Tuesday evening, yielded to the wishes of the merchants who are desirous of keeping their stores open until ten o'clock on the night before a holiday. It had been rumored that the clerks were in favor of having the stores keep open only to nine o'clock on Thanksgiving eve, but to ten o'clock on all other nights before holidays. The merchants contended it would be confusing to the public unless a uniform closing hour before holidays was adopted. The agreement was reached very amicably, it was stated Wednesday. Ten o'clock was fixed as the closing hour before all holidays.

Interest Growing In Trinity Revival

The basement of Trinity church was filled to overflowing for the third night of the revival. Prof. J. N. Davis assisted by his large chorus choir, started the services with a lively song service. He had the old and young singing just the same as the choir. They made the old "Bible" Sunday song "Oh How You Will Love Him When You Know Him" ring like in the days of old. Miss Alice Blake, Miss Ruth Crawford with Mrs. S. R. Crawford and Mrs. J. N. Davis made a splendid support for the choir. We have heard some good gospel singing at Trinity but the singing last night had more of the real revival ring to it than we have heard for a long time.

Rev. Streeker read for his scripture lesson that beautiful passage of scripture where Nicodemus came to Jesus by night inquiring the way of salvation and light. Mr. Edwards sang a touching song entitled "Some Happy Day."

Sermon, "A Simple Mystery," John, chapter 3, verse 7. "Ye must be born again." This question asked by Nicodemus to Christ brought the sudden and startling answer "Ye must be born again" and brothers we have not got beyond this doctrine uttered over 1900 years ago. I am still old fashioned enough to believe in the new birth. John Wesley went up and down England preaching this doctrine and founded a mighty church upon it, and Whitfield stood upon this same firm foundation. I am told there are members of the church who have not been born again and if so give the Lord your heart tonight.

When born again that which we once loved we now hate and that which we hated we love. Some ask the question the same as Nicodemus, can an old man be made young. I will admit it is harder for an old man to be born into the new life, but that Christ will not have him but that the old man will not have Christ. It is pathetic the few men who accept Christ after the age of 50 and you can almost count them on your fingers. But I offer you a savior who can save to the uttermost. He saved John Wesley at the age of 40 and started him to preaching sermons that still echoes down the ages. I can not fully explain that change to the new birth as there is an element of the divine in it, but I can tell you how to get it. Listen, if you will repent and surrender your heart to Jesus Christ you can get the new birth. It is over the old road to Calvary. Come tonight and give your heart to Jesus.

At the close of the pastor's strong appeal one young man and one young woman came forward and knelt at the altar and found the new birth. At the close of the service a large part of the members gathered around the altar and joined in an earnest prayer service for the lost and unsaved. Several raised their hands for prayer and there was a deep spiritual feeling throughout the services.

SAYS DAY OF INSTITUTE IS PAST

Editor of The Times:

Dear Sir:—The institute question has aroused some interest among the teachers, and I was much pleased with Colonel McCull's article. Being one of the ancient wielders of the whips and ferreted to, I will say that we have had good institutes, but those many times in other states.

The county and district superintendents need help and encouragement which all sane people should be willing to give. They have a big job and will earn all that they are paid.

Some may doubt this, but they will also doubt that the electric light is better than the tallow candle. The candle and the wheelbarrow were best at one time, but conditions are such now that we need electric lights and express trains. The old methods are gone, never to return. The earth and time move forward but never back. The pendulum measures time forward no matter if it swings back half the time.

We cannot stop or go back, we must go on and on. Let us then turn on the light and energy and quit knocking. If we are so built that we must kick let us start the kick.

YOUR HEAD AND STOMACH

Headache caused by a disturbed digestion is nearly always accompanied by pain in the stomach, belching of gas, vomiting and sleep by constipation. This sort of headache is generally located in the forehead and is not constant but comes and goes.

It does not come on immediately after eating but after the food has had time to ferment which is due to the digestive tract being out of order. It is usually relieved by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, because the blood is failing to nourish these glands.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are essential to proper digestion and the digestive process cannot proceed without it. When lack of nourishing blood causes fermentation and poisonous gases from the digestive tract, the pills in your hand advise you of the fact. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills give the blood just the elements they need to correct this condition and, with a laxative, when needed, form a perfect treatment for the headache of indigestion.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

She made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to bring back color, gloss, thickness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will bring a revelation if your hair is falling away or dry, scraggy and thin. Mix the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe a long time, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic containing 50 cents a large bottle of drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of fuss. While wispy gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and lustrous.

AUSTRIA MOVES TROOPS TO ITALIAN FRONTIER

ITALY FULLY PREPARED TO REALIZE ITS ASPIRATIONS

Geneva, March 24—(Via Paris)—The Austrian government now considers war with Italy more than probable, according to dispatches received here from Vienna. A large number of troops have arrived in the Tyrol and Triest where defensive works are being constructed.

Country Ready To Face Even Supreme Struggle

Rome, March 24—(Via Paris)—Commenting favorably upon the adjournment of the chamber of deputies the Giornale D'Italia says every deputy now is convinced of the necessity for Italy to act energetically, "facing any sacrifice, even a supreme struggle, to realize Italian aspirations." The paper adds: "With the full liberty of action granted by parliament the government now is free to choose the way, the means and the hour of using the weapons at its disposal with the firmness and prudence necessary to insure success while the country, calm and disciplined, is ready for everything."

Clear Border Line of Targets For Artillery

Geneva, March 24—(Via Paris)—An uncorroborated dispatch to the Tribune from the Austrian border states that Austrian military engineers have blown up with dynamite all the buildings between Sugana Pass, in Trent and Lake Garda, on the Italian frontier, which would be in the line of artillery fire. The eastern part of the town of Rovereto is reported to have been abandoned and all the buildings torn down. All persons suspected of pro-Italian sympathies are said to have been sent into the interior to be interned.

Government Confiscated Supplies For Krupp Works

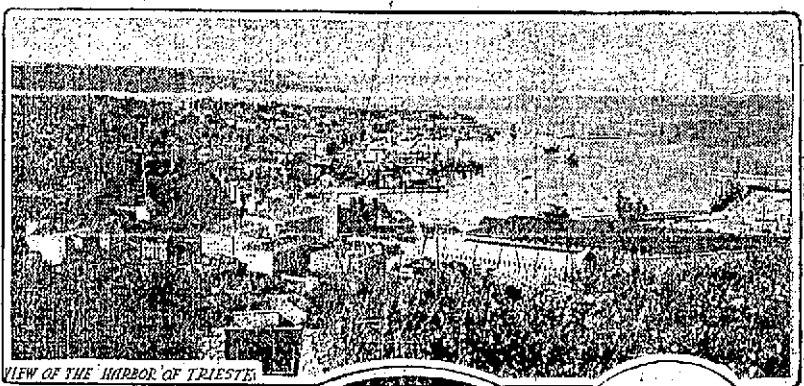

Geneva, March 24—(Via Paris)—The Italian government ordered the seizure yesterday at Lino, near the Swiss frontier, of twenty-nine freight cars containing graphite, sulphur and other supplies said to have been destined for the Krupp gun works at Essen, Germany. Refuse Request To Move Mission In East Africa

Rome, March 24—(Via Paris)—The Italian government is said to have refused a request made by Germany that a mission sent to Erythraea be permitted to continue its journey through that district into Abyssinia. Italy's refusal is reported to have been based upon the belief that the object of the mission was to incite an attack by Abyssinians upon British forces in the Sudan.

Admiral Roux de Lapeyrolle.

Admiral Roux de Lapeyrolle is commander in chief of the French squadron in the Mediterranean. He has had little opportunity as yet to prove his ability as a naval strategist. PRINCE VON BUELOW

PREMIER SALANDRA

Trieste, Austria's most important port on the Adriatic, is one of the pawns demanded by Italy as the price of conditional neutrality in the present war. It is fair to assume that Italy will make like conditions for joining the allies against Germany and Austria. Prince Von Buelow, Germany's greatest diplomat, has for months been in Rome endeavoring to bring about some understanding with Italy. Premier Salandra has held out for a big slice of Austria as a condition for keeping Italy back.

U. S. SENDS WARSHIPS TO BACK UP DEMANDS ON GERMAN LINER

Washington, March 24—The United States district attorney at San Juan, Porto Rico, had instructions today to begin legal proceedings against the Hamburg American liner Odenwald which tried to put to sea Sunday after clearance had been refused her, while the cutter Albatross was steaming from the West Indian to San Juan to aid American officials in efforts to guard against violations of neutrality. Secretary Daniels also had instructed Admiral Fletcher at Guantanamo to despatch two destroyers to Porto Rico to co-operate in that work.

Orders for the movement of the American ships were given after officials here received reports from San Juan that some fear was felt that the Odenwald and another German liner might try to slip to sea past the guns of Morro Castle. The report, according to other ships at the port, now tied up at San Juan.

Action ordered against the Odenwald is the first taken under authority of the neutral reservation adopted by congress in the closing days of the last session. Under the proceedings the Odenwald might be held in custody of a marshal until it was determined whether she should be forfeited to the United States, or the vessel's owners might give bond for her release pending settlement in the courts.

By taking three in a row from the Clod Hoppers at the Play House alleys last night the Giants clinched the pennant and the respective players of this fine haired aggregation are now going around with expanded chests and inflated opinions of themselves. The Giants performed the remarkable feat of starting the race in first place and they have held that exalted position from that time on. They now have a seven game lead over their nearest rivals, the Ivory Knobs and as the season has but six more games to run it does not require much of a mathematician to figure that the Giants could lose all six games while the Ivories were winning six in a row and still be at the top of the heap when the bell sounds on the 31st of March. It sure is half off to those Giants—well named, well balanced, well managed, well governed.

While the Giants were triumphing the Clod Hoppers, the Ivory Knobs were giving the Clod Shuckers a 2 to 1 beating on alleys 2 and 3. The Ivories lost the first two games with the rankiest kind of ease, but Captain Strimmler arrived on the scene in time to put the team in No. 1 and his presence more than his boxing assisted in coupling the last game, the second players going all to pieces along with Captain Terry. The Ivories Young who went like a son-of-a-gun in the opening and then faded like a frost-bitten tomato vine.

The Giants had an easy time beating the Hoppers, and never once were they in danger. The Hoppers could have been perfectly and heroically, doing the best they could at all times. While Captain Strimmler had high hopes of the evening, George Wilhelm, clean up man for the Giants, had high hopes. The survivor is certainly in form right now and is handling those pins like the sharpest of blades. He is, however, having a great deal of trouble in all the other corners of themselves luckily—that would be appreciated only by pennant winners. The scores:

A MAN ON THE JOB.

When Edward C. Turner was prosecuting attorney of Franklin county he demonstrated a rare devotion to duty that refused to be swayed by any outside interests or calculations and that commanded the attention and admiration of the state. Citizens had reason to expect much of him when they elevated him to the position of attorney general of the state and his recent actions have shown that their faith in him was justified. Mr. Turner has brought the same high ideals to his new office that characterized his as prosecutor and he insists that the laws of the state must be obeyed, regardless of suggestions from an expediency loving governor and a spoilsman legislature that the constitution should not stand in the way among friends. Thus when Mr. Turner found that the legislature was violating the law in the passage of alleged emergency acts designed solely to secure patronage for a horde of office seekers, he called a halt. Then there was a hurried conference of legislative leaders and no less a person than the governor of this state, from which conference an appeal was sent to Turner that he withhold his ruling and not say anything about it so that the party managers could go ahead with a division of the spoils. But Attorney General Turner was made of better stuff than that. He refused to become a passive party to a violation of the constitution of the state and his ruling went forth.

Attorney General Turner seems to be the sort of an official needed in public office. He stands forth in striking contrast to Governor Willis and his immediate advisers who were anxious, according to newspaper dispatches, to go ahead with their program regardless of the law and the constitution.

THE FIENDISH VENEZUELAN "TORTOLA"

I had been in the Venezuelan Republic for some ten years, and was well known as a peaceful foreigner, when one day I was approached by a prominent Government official and asked whether I would help the Godos (Conservatives) in their endeavor to free the country from the tyranny and corruption under which it was suffering, writes H. G. Fuller in The Wide World Magazine for April.

At once I entered into the spirit of the revolution, and volunteered my services in Caracas, the capital, as organizer and intermediary between the "heads" in Porto Rico and the "party" in the country.

Everything went well with me until, one evening, I was just returning from delivering private correspondence from "outside" to the leaders "inside", when I was suddenly accosted by three men I knew to be spies of the Government, who pushed me into a waiting automobile and hurried me off to the Rotunda, the political jail. On arrival there I was stripped of my outer garments and, after being examined to see that I had nothing concealed on my person, was made to get through a sort of window about five feet from the floor and just large enough to allow a man to pass. I was then conducted by two negro orderlies to a calabozo (dungeon) with cement floor, containing a wooden shelf some four feet from the ground. This calabozo measured ten feet long by six feet wide at one end and four feet wide at the door, where a heavy canvas curtain hung.

In a few minutes I heard heavy footfalls, and was surprised to see the governor of the jail, accompanied by a negro with iron and another carrying a small stove (stovos) containing burning charcoal. They then proceeded to put the iron on my ankles and rivet them on.

These irons, or grillos, weighed seventy pounds. I was told that the wooden shelf was my bed and that I was to keep silence. No blankets or pillows are allowed, and one is in one's underwear all night and all day.

After a great deal of hard work I managed to climb on to my "bed" and sit with my back against the wall, my legs extended. Being thoroughly fatigued, I fell asleep, but was later awakened by voices outside my cell. Then a light was thrust inside and the governor, with his assistant and two black jailers with drawn swords, came inside.

"Declare what you know," ordered the governor. I protested that I had nothing to tell him. Again he ordered me to confess all I knew, and on my replying that I had absolutely nothing to tell him I was struck across the legs with a verga, a hard leather thong.

Seeing that I was determined to say nothing, he told me meaningfully that there were other means of extracting a confession, and left me, going into the calabozo adjoining mine, where I heard him order the prisoner there to declare what he knew.

What the man's reply was I do not know, but shortly afterwards I heard him scream out: "Oh, heavens! Don't kill me like this! Shoot me; hang me; cut my throat; but don't do this to me! I am dying!"

I afterwards found out that they had put the tortola on the man, who was a doctor and connected with the Godos. The tortola is a fiendish instrument, placed on a very sensitive part of the body and screwed up, causing excruciating pain. It was a common occurrence at two or three o'clock in the morning to hear a man scream out with horror and pain when the tortola was being screwed up to try and make him reveal what he knew of the doings of the other political party.

WE WANT AN AFFIDAVIT.

The next Republican aspirant for majority honors who drops around and whispers in our ear that he is thinking of being a candidate at the primary and would appreciate it so much if we would hint about his friends madly calling upon him to run so that the public pulse could be felt, will have to bring along an affidavit and two friends to back it up, to the effect that he will not make a general and wholesale denial in the Star the next morning. We like to be obliging and are really inclined to be very patient and forbearing, but we have been stung twice lately and enough is enough.

The original King of the Cannibal Islands lived on one of the Fiji Islands in the South Pacific. Now ninety per cent of the former cannibals are church members. A number of missionaries were served in stews before the change came, and some of the unregenerate still think longingly of missionary hush.—Gullipolis Tribune.

"See that group of men over there," remarked the man who stands on the First National Bank corner every day in the year, holidays included. "Well they are the unemployed Republican politicians who expected to land soft jobs up at Columbus, and who are now putting in their time trying to figure how it is that such non-combatants as Art Devoss can connect while they are left to eat snow balls. 'Tis a sad and cruel world."

Senator Tremper seems to use a rabbit's foot on his fellow members of the upper house of the Ohio legislature for whenever he has a bill out for passage it gets about all the votes there are. Even the Democrats join in helping the gentleman from Scioto.

At that we hope that Young Doc Sellards will not allow his budding ambition to be mayor to be blighted by the chilling frost of a Star that has other fish to fry.

Taking the Dardanelles has not proven such a holiday sport as the Britishers and the French anticipated.

The Columbus Journal which has Billy Sundayphobia to an alarming degree unctuously remarks that Billy is paying no attention to the hammering he is getting from Eastern newspapers, but goes serenely on his way. Sure. Why should Billy worry? Or why should anybody else worry if they pulled down a trifle of $52,176 for nine weeks slinging of slang?

Want City Water

Alan Jordan conferred with William Gergens, director of public service, early Wednesday morning, relative to making preliminary arrangements for city water supply service in the new likelihood addition east of New Boston. The city engineer will be asked to prepare plans and estimates and the matter will then be taken up with city council. The owners of the new addition are also considering plans for constructing combination storm and sanitary sewers.

Our own idea of perseverance that should bring its own reward is the case of the young person who blows a horn two hours consecutively each night in the week except Sunday, and who devotes three weeks to each note.

Sometimes as we contemplate the self-satisfied great men about us we are reminded of what Saint Beuve said of Philip Stanhope, son of the famous Lord Chesterfield, viz—"He was one of those ordinary men of the world, of whom it suffices to be said, there is nothing to be said."

Really we think the most considerate thing that ever happened was for Chillicothe and Ironton to come into the Ohio State League again just to give Portsmouth the pleasure of beating them. Such politeness is overpowering.

MOTHER McGREW AND HER FAMILY

Said Mother McGrew one nice morning in May;
"I hear there's a Sunday school picnic today;
We'll go if you promise to be very good."
And of course all the animals promised they would.

Said Mother McGrew, "Now what shall we take?"
The Rabbit said "pie" and the Ostrich said "cake."
But the Pig said, "Oh, mercy! take all sorts of stuff;
'Twould be a sad thing if we hadn't enough."

She started to work and soon Mother McGrew
Had cooked enough food for a family or two;
And then they set off as fast as they could
For the Sunday school picnic in Robinson's wood.

And almost at once the Pig said, "Let's eat quick,
For that is the best thing about a picnic."
But Mother McGrew said severely, "That's rude;
You must not be all the time thinking of food."

"Run off now and play and at quarter past two We'll have a nice dinner," said Mother McGrew.
So off they all scampered, both little and big,
The only one who didn't go was the Pig.

At a quarter past two they came back out of breath,
And said, "Now let's eat, we are most starved to death."
But though they went looking and searching around,
Not a trace of their beautiful lunch could be found.

No one would have blamed Mr. Pig, I suppose,
But Mother McGrew saw some pie on his nose.
Said she, "Now, young man, you go home double-quick,
And you never again can attend a picnic."

And so he went home just as quick as he could
From the Sunday school picnic in Robinson's wood,
And since then at picnics I don't think you'll find
A Pig, or at least not the four-footed kind.

THE ADVENTURES OF ETHEL ELEPHANT

(By Evelyn Campbell and Mildred Schloss.)

Once there was a little girl named
Ethel Elephants,
She was a very sweet child, we
will agree;

She lived in a jungle with mother
and aunt,
And was happy, contented, and
free.

One day Ethel grew very discouraged,
And what on earth do you think
she did say;

"I've got a very splendid little
plan,
I think that I will run away."

She went upstairs and filled her
trunk,
And through the air her hat she
hurled,

She was thinking quietly to herself,
Of her adventures in the world.

She hopped and skipped and had
a good time,
But she walked a very long way,
Till she came to a distant jungle,
And there she thought she would play.

HUNTINGTON

Another notable step in the growth and progress of the Anderson-Newcomb Company, whose department store on Third avenue has
for many years been one of the leading institutions of Huntington,
was announced yesterday, when it was known that the room in the rear of the building occupied by the Smith Shoe Co. had been taken over by the owners of the big establishment with a view to the extension of the annex leading to the east
from the rear of the present first floor. The building was purchased outright and the ground leased, and the Anderson-Newcomb Company thus secured 30x30 feet of additional floor space.

W. H. Newcomb, Jr., one of the officers of the company, stated yesterday that the new room would be entered by an archway from the present extension, which is in the rear of the Brod shoe store and that the toy department would be transferred to the space thus required in order to relieve the congestion in the basement.—Huntington Herald-

GRAND JURY WILL ACT IN THE ASSAULT CASE

At one o'clock this afternoon, the grand jury will be assembled in special session to investigate a number of cases, chief of which is the criminal assault upon Mrs. William Barker, of near Haverhill, last Saturday, of which W. H. Henkel, stands charged. His alleged victim and her husband, and other residents of that community will testify against Henkel.

Henkel is a prisoner at the county jail, having been arrested last Saturday afternoon about one hour after the assault was committed, by Mrs. Barker's husband and other men of that neighborhood. The county authorities have weaved a strong chain of direct and circumstantial evidence about the accused man, and his indictment upon a charge of rape is practically certain.

Henkel was arraigned before Squire Finney, Monday evening, on two charges, rape and highway robbery, to both of which he pleaded not guilty. His story, however, at the time of his arraignment, was not given much credence by the officials, who anticipated his indictment on both charges.

Other important cases to be investigated by the grand jury before it adjourns are the robberies of the Thompson Bros. store in McDermott and J. M. Augustine's store in this city, in both of which arrests have been made and strong evidence worked up against the accused.

Prosecuting Attorney Micklethwait stated Wednesday morning that in all forty witnesses have been subpoenaed, and that fourteen cases will be investigated. He added that he did not think a report would be ready until some time Thursday.

PRANKY DAN CUPID CHASED AWAY FROM CHILD ELOPERS BY A WOMAN

Grace Bowles and Alston Curtin, photographed on eloping journey.

Thoroughly displeased at the prospect of single life, Alston Curtin, sixteen, and Grace Bowles, fifteen, both of Washington, eloped to New York last week. Their happiness was short lived, for in the latter city Mrs. Helen J. Adams, an agent of the Travelers' Aid Society, espied them as soon as they got off the train and got them to tell her their story. As soon as she learned the facts she had them taken in hand by the Children's Society, which detained them until their parents arrived to take them home.

At the regular meeting of Lucasville Culture Club Rev. Peitsmeyer conducted devotional exercises, Earl Moulton read current events, Rev. Peitsmeyer read a selection from Longfellow and Prof. F. S. The next meeting will be held April 5th at which Miss Esther Peitsmeyer will be tried for robbing J. W. Mille's barber shop from which a violin and a quantity of cigars and tobacco was taken. The judge will be Prof. F. S. Alley, prosecuting Attorney, Cleve Bricker and attorney for defense, Louis McKinley, Sheriff, Clinton Springs.

EXPERT ENGINEER GIVES VIEWS ON WATERWORKS

J. H. Howland, an expert engineer of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, whose annual report on Portsmouth's new water works and fire department, was recently made public, has supplemented the same with his views relative to getting the best efficiency in pumping station equipment.

Mr. Howland suggests that the only way to insure complete efficiency is to employ the services of a high grade mechanical engineer who has made a specialty of advising in regard to water works equipment. He says the present type of pump is just a way suited to the operating conditions and that the city should have at least one high duty crank and fly-wheel, triple-expansion unit of ample capacity, to take care of the maximum rates of domestic consumption. He adds that the question is as to whether the proper reserve pumping capacity should be of the previously mentioned high duty type or of the less costly motor or steam turbine driven centrifugal units with a considerably lower duty is for an engineer to decide who has considered carefully the head of water on the suction and discharge sides of the pump, the quality of the water, cost of coal and other sources of power and other numerous details so necessary in the selection of the most efficient and economical arrangement of the main pumping station equipment.

The John H. McGowan company, of Cincinnati, says Chief Engineer George Shute has not sufficiently progressed with the readjustment of the pumps to permit of the draining of the reservoir for the purpose of closing leaks and tightening up the basin.

THE LIBERTY BELL'S CRACK

Curator Jordan, who has charge of the relics stored in Independence Hall at Philadelphia, has been lecturing on the crack in the Liberty Bell. Mr. Jordan has in view the creation of sentiment to prevent the proposed journey of the bell to the California expositions. The theory of metallurgists is that the crack in the bell is growing, and that, even if left alone, it will split in two the famous bronze herald of freedom. Mr. Jordan's argument, which is backed by many other Philadelphians, is that a trip across the continent would hasten this probable result. Thousands of children on the Pacific coast have petitioned Mayor Blankenburg, of Philadelphia, to allow the bell to make the journey across the continent.

Amicable Arrangement

Members of the Retail Clerks' Union, at their meeting Tuesday evening, yielded to the wishes of the merchants who are desirous of keeping their stores open until ten o'clock on the night before a holiday. It had been rumored that the clerks were in favor of having the stores keep open only to nine o'clock on Thanksgiving eve, but to ten o'clock on all other nights before holidays. The merchants contended it would be confusing to the public unless a uniform closing hour before holidays was adopted. The agreement was reached very amicably, it was stated Wednesday. Ten o'clock was fixed as the closing hour before all holidays.

Roof Was On Fire

Wood burning in an open grate at the residence of John Nunkler, at 1313 Eighth street Tuesday evening, caused sparks to pour out of the chimney, some of which alighted on the roof, igniting it. Mrs. Lora Vogel, a neighbor, happened to be passing at the time and notified the family. Her son, Harry, turned in the alarm at 7:15 o'clock, and the fire department was on the scene promptly, putting out the blaze before any serious damage was done. The property is owned by Miss Alice Thudait, and the damage was limited to a few charred shingles.

The machine plunged into a street excavation.

Says Parents Are Responsible For Providing Wholesome Recreation

Two Sessions, Bible Reading, In Schools Are Opposed By Mrs. Bachman In Lecture

Reading of the Bible in the public schools is opposed by Mrs. Dora Sandoe Bachman, of Columbus, who delivered an entertaining and profitable lecture at the High School Tuesday evening on the subject, "Modern Conditions in Public Education."

She also went on record in opposition to the two sessions a day plan for a high school, claiming that it was her experience as a member of the Columbus board of education that the plan worked a hardship on young men and young women who are helping to make their way through school. She admitted that the one session plan left more time at the disposal of the students, but she contended that upon the parents fell the burden of providing wholesome recreation for their children. It was only in the instances where the parents failed in their duty that the schools should step in.

Mrs. Bachman also stated that in Columbus they were considering seriously the return to the two sessions a day plan, but that it was due to the congested conditions of the high schools, which she claimed, were overcrowded. So far as the pupils were concerned, they still would have the one day sessions, as the same pupils would not attend both sessions.

Reading of the Bible in the schools was opposed for the reason that it was unfair to the children who are being brought up in other faiths.

"We ought not want to have the Bible read to children of other faiths any more than we would want the Koran read to our children if we happened to be located in a foreign country. Some one has suggested that these children could leave the room while the Bible is being read, but I submit to you if there is a child who would want to leave the humiliation of leaving the room while the Bible is being read."

"The place to educate our children along religious lines is at the Sunday school, through the religious organizations, and at the home."

Religious training in the schools approaches too closely the union of the church and the state. Comments on the Bible reading by the teachers would open the way for all sorts of unpleasant conditions in the schools.

The responsibility of the parents in teaching the child self-control and self-reliance, the proper interest in the schools, that a desirable condition is maintained.

Study at school and study at home both had their advantages, and Mrs. Bachman recommended both for the pupils. The study at school was favored because it broke the recitation periods, which are trying upon the child if they continue uninterrupted throughout the school day. The argument in favor of study was that it permitted the child to concentrate its mind on its work, a difficult task at school where there is so much to distract the pupil's mind.

Use of the school buildings as community centers was also favored by Mrs. Bachman, but to insure a success of the project, the demand must come from the parents and the teachers, she thought. "You teachers can't organize the community center plan and force the parents and children to take an interest in it. The demand must come from the homes of your school children, and then you can give it every encouragement within your power."

The above important questions were brought out after Mrs. Bachman's address, in response to queries which she invited at the close of her lecture. The promptness and thoroughness with which she answered each question demonstrated that she has been accustomed to deal with such questions as a member of the board of education of Columbus.

Mrs. Bachman did not favor a big upheaval in educational affairs, but she did recommend changes that were in keeping with modern conditions and the growth of the country. She also urged her hearers to get solidly behind any movement that meant the advancement of the school system.

"When some one advocates a change that will mean an improvement, don't stand around and oppose it, and say you didn't have that when you were children, and that you got along all right without it. Remember the world that we are educating our children for is a very different world than the one into which we stepped from the school rooms."

"And don't neglect the school affairs of your city by taking no part in them, and then criticize the school board and the school officials for not doing what you think they ought to do. The schools of our city will be governed the way the people want them to be managed, and it is only when every one takes the proper interest in the schools that a desirable condition is maintained."

"Among the things that will command more thought and attention from the school authorities in the near future are vocational training, and recreation periods. It is going to be imperative that these things be included in the school curriculum, in Mrs. Bachman's opinion. This may have a tendency to lengthen the school day, but it will not be a day of continuous study and mental concentration.

Industrial training was not held out, however, as a panacea for all of the ills that affect the educational system. The prime purpose of education, she added, was to train the mind. "A well-trained mind will direct the hand when the time comes that direction is necessary," she said.

She called attention to the lack of funds for public education that every city and town in Ohio was experiencing, and again emphasized the aid of her auditors to get behind a movement that would compel the state legislature to provide more money for school funds.

The value of providing lunch of some kind during the morning hours has been demonstrated in Columbus, said Mrs. Bachman. This applied to the wealthier children as to the poorer classes, and was favored for every locality.

In the early part of her address she emphasized the part which education plays in the development and growth of the nation, and in the eradication of poverty, filth and crime. Her views along these lines were similar to those expressed by educational leaders for years past, and provided a pleasing preface for her more modern ideas.

She also spoke of the prominent part which women have played in educational matters in this country for the past few years, and weighed in with a strong plea for the movement to elect a woman as a member of the board of education of Portsmouth.

Mrs. Bachman was introduced by Superintendent Frank Appel, who also complimented the women for the part they were taking in educational affairs locally, particularly the Mothers' and Teachers' Club of the Lower Fourth street school building, under whose auspices the lecture was given.

Mrs. Bachman was entertained royally during her stay in this city, being the guest of honor at a tea and reception given Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Allen S. Jordan, which was attended by over one hundred women, all of whom met the distinguished visitor. Mrs. Bachman left for home early Wednesday morning, well pleased with her local visit.
